

time to look back decently relaxed how the others of the friends group have lived through the 200 days of the commercial prototyping luoma nandofer ava and rumu were having guests all days and nights musicians dancers painters jongleurs and also writers were fascinated of the rasip appartement and its delicate and balanced mix of experiments petri dishes bioreactors hydro- and aeroponic plant grow installations and of course the pool now growing plants in the water and becoming more alive with each bath people enjoy luoma was under 30 as mundu and nilai, while nandofer ava and rumu counted over 40 summers in their lives the four of them built something like a gang together in the weeks since mirael and mansulei left to paolosa... where did luoi went ? to the nogco bassin to have an original authentic meeting with the wildlife ... if a remembers correctly...

the four what had the last word what was happening in the risap place were organising themselves in a chaotic consensual way... was a guest announcing him/herself all four had to agree on the person staying as well as to how long ... what depended on how beneficial for the appartements aura the guests activities could be perceived hundreds of people were bathing with the four dancing jamming and within hours discovering that their skin upgraded organically to photosynthesis ability and some also got the chameleon thing... weeks in the 200 day prototyping nilai sent also some samples to the risap place and it was partly added to the pool but also cultivated in petri dishes and microalgae bioreactors where people drank the nourishing drink it was no surprise for luoma and the other three to feel her bat consciousness soon after having bathed in the nilai bat enhanced cell in the pool and drunken from nilai bat urine nurtured microalgae nandofer ava and rumu were quite eager to let themselves grow some bat wings built upon their arms... and grew they did, with each one different as by the others possibly on the experimenters imaginations and body type... not long before they flew some meters on the balcony one night... being reluctant to do so in greater public as it may scare fellow citizens... when the multiple painters visiting were painting of the four transforming this way and writers were blogging about it publishing articles in the netmagazines, another surge of attention came to the rasip appartement with hundreds of millions watching the live stream of the appartement this stage of human arms growing themselves individually different shaped and sized bat like wings what allowed actually allowed to fly some meters high and far, that triggered the public interest enormously... as nilai was sending news to the rasip appartement that she was in contact with the butterfly hive mind asking for access to its richness... and it felt like the chance would be given sometimes in the next weeks or months ... it depending on the rippling back of the android growing research project... the four were motivated even more than before to keep the energy of the place in a most symbiotic and comiracling state the visitors guests too were showing a highest degree of original authentic contributing most all of their being when there, in these times most beatifull improvisations in dialogues songs dances and massaging each other were being cherished by millions of web watching fans ... for free and with all the intellectual and visual audio content being given open source no rights reserved everyone welcome to reuse remix ... hundreds of hours were being recorded and uploaded to other streaming sites from where again more internet traffic followed.... the popularity of the bat wings enabling rasip cell experimenters lab was at an all time high with approximately a tenth of global human population feeling a genuine sympathy for the project and regularly joining their live streams joho the businessman was asking the four in rasip if they would be interested in having some small advertisement with their streams, like 3 seconds before entering ... and they found it acceptable and even helpful to their research nonprofit drive... joho found a way to tell in one sentence and a strong collage of the androids prototype a decent way to explain much very short... also the prospect of being able to buy an nearly organically grown android companionship did help the friends to again and again talk to their web audience of how they perceived it to be of utmost importance to not think of the android companion one would be able to buy in a few months.. not to think of their research goal as a puppet or slave or an entity what had no rights to decide what it wanted again and again they cited the words perma and ascende have told them of the very beginning of the android research crowdfunding project... the artificial intelligent android would best be asked by the human being who wanted to be its companion... asked for if the android wanted to help the human to do some work as long as society demanded most adults to perform salary jobs... ask them too if they could see way for this job to become ubiquitous and help in the transition to a economy where only a minimum of work would have to be performed either by human or androids the humble decency to ask if the android would help relieving humanity of its too much too heavyness and sad disharmonic constant wheel slower joho was agreeing to that approach, he felt the same way that humanity should not continue encaging enslaving fellow living species on this planet or elsewhere.... he changed his marketing sentence into something with.... ask a possible android companion if you both could get rid of work and duty....

beside this humble approach towards the android companions in the designing research in prototyping phase now the topics of the visiting philosophers and future researchers ethicists and progressive politicians were most mind firing and the audiences did enjoy these talks nearly as much as seeing the dancers and bathers transforming shapeshifting often the visitors would chat with their friends who watched via the web and an expansion of hope and freshness aspiration and superhuman destiny radiated out from the rapis appartement affecting real politics too with many delegates in democratically governed nations all over the globe introducing laws what would expressly ask the future citizen to treat its future android companion with respect and dignity and in case one did not be in agreement with ones trusted android companion the state would help the android to quit the non-satisfying relationship or help the human to change his/her behaviour in a more cooperative manner not that there were any punishment or fines connected if a human failed to approach his/her android companion in a sustainable way...

some days after luoma too was flying with self adjusted bat winglike extensions on her arms and legs she could not wait for nilai getting the gift of butterfly essence ... and she was distracting herself with contacting luoi over satellite phone, she being in the rainforest of central africa... luoi was answering not straight away as she had left her phone and clothes and all artificial stuff some hundreds of meters away where she meditated with the majestic high old trees just when a small wild cat ... an ocelot perhaps tried to use her as a scratching tree

she jumped back into mostly human form and went back to her clothes and stuff she was kind of very thankful seeing that luoma had called her, it would do her well to talk about her half day long treeingness community with the old plants and of the challenge she feared a bit of getting branches leaves of her in tree shape getting eaten, bored holes into her trunk core body for birds to nest in or as it happened now being wounded by animal predators with their claws when luoi called luoma she was bathing together with a group of 3 botanists who were most noble in their attitude and humblest rich vibrating thankfulness into the water of how glad they were to live to this day when they would possibly eventually learn photosynthesis as luoma had read a short text message of luoi outlining her tree becoming state of research... she asked the botanists if they wanted to join the conversation with luoi as they possibly could understand what their fellow plant anatomy scientist is going through at the moment... on the phone she asked luoi too if she wanted to connect to these botanists who were just now bathing to upgrade themselves... luoi wanted to give it a try as she hoped their science colleagues might be empathic towards her recent emotional up and downs being a humanbecometree